THURSDAY MORNING, MAY 29, 1856 A Great Cry and Little Wool.

The everlasting Jim Lane appeared in our midst again on Tuesday last, reporting that he had just received telegraphic intelligence of its written constitutions and bills of rightsterrible bloody murders of men, women and forcible opposition to law, upon any pretext, the same evening. Not a single word of the reported trash that Lang and his cohorts pretended to have and to preach from was true.

The telegraphic reports to-day make no mention of such events pit was all a gross deception, a transparent humbug, to carry out a low contemptible artifice. Lang was decaption, a transparent numbug, to carry out a low contemptible artifice. Lank was detained here to execute it, while Morron was sent to Terre Haute to fill Lank's appointment there.
